

All species in the dataset (except for fire salamanders) and all observations from both continents were retained in these analyses.